Important information about grid connection and future tariffs

Installing solar PV, wind generation, battery storage or other embedded generation does not remove the need for Alderney Electricity Limited (“AEL”) to maintain the electricity network and sufficient connection capacity for the premises.

Where on-site generation or storage is unavailable or insufficient, electricity supplied by AEL may replace or supplement the electricity generated at the premises.

If your proposal proceeds, connection may be subject to:

- AEL’s General Conditions for the Supply of Electricity;
- AEL’s current Schedule of Charges;
- an Embedded Generation Connection Agreement; and
- where lawfully applicable, an embedded-generation, standby-supply or capacity-based tariff containing a fixed charge in addition to charges for electricity imported from the AEL network.

Tariffs, charges and export arrangements applicable at the date of this enquiry are not guaranteed to remain unchanged throughout the operating life of the installation. Any future charge will be introduced only in accordance with applicable law, any required approval and the relevant notice provisions.

This enquiry is not an offer or approval to connect and does not establish any entitlement to export electricity or receive payment for electricity exported.
